DRUDGERY GOES WITH ELECTRICITY—

How light has grown the drudgery of housework since the days of our grandmothers. From the old wood stove and the washboard came the change to modern electric dual-automatic ranges and up-to-date washing machines. And instead of the heavy stove-warming irons mother now pushes a light-weight streamlined chrome surfaced automatic that does everything but iron clothes by radio. It's a loud cry from the days of our older kinfolk but it is surely a glad one.

The iceman doesn't come around anymore since mother got the new automatic refrigerator. He doesn't come around after the floors have been freshly polished to dirty them with his wet feet and spread sawdust all over the floor. Ma gets the right size cubes out of the ice-box and the meat tastes as if its meat now. You would be surprised the labor that the new frig. saves her in steps alone. The few cents that it costs to run it are worth the price. She gets more time to listen to the radio and tell us the news when we get home from work now.

That stove sure is a swell cooker too! Mother hasn't burnt a pie in ages. She times it on that dial on the stove and she says she can cook an article at different temperatures at the same time with her new range. It cooks the meat much better and the supper is ready on time too. Those electric plates on the top aren't always breaking or cracking when she happens to spill cold water on them.

Monday isn't "blue Monday" at our place any more either. Mother has the washing all done and half out on the line before I'm even up in the morning now. That speeds up her wash day and saves me the bother of having to help hang out the clothes besides. Our clothes come out a lot whiter than they used to with the old washer. The shirts aren't worn around the collars or the cuffs aren't frayed. It is a swell looking washer too. It doesn't look out of place like the old one. I couldn't stand to see that old one even in the cellar.

It seems as if everything in our house is electric now. First we got the stove and then came the refrigerator. The old washer was traded in on that white square one and after that mother just had to have a new vacuum cleaner.

I remember how sore my grandmother's hands used to be from picking lint and crumbs out of the carpet. Mother's hands look like something out of a magazine since she got the vacuum. It seems sort of strange to have a vacuum cleaner around the house that doesn't sound like a boiler factory in full blast. The new one is quiet in comparison to the other. It has a headlight that shows where the dirt is in the dark corners and all the attachments that let a person get at the dirt no matter how small or where the dirt is. It's a handy thing to have for cleaning out the car, besides.

Tuesday used to be and still is our day for ironing and after Monday a person didn't feel much like going through another heavy day but it just had to be done. Now Tuesday is just another day to folks in our house because the new iron practically does the work all by itself. You don't burn your hand off either. It's got a regulator on the top underneath the handle that controls the heat. There are no more scorched or burnt shirts in our family. It's only about half as heavy as most of the irons and a whole day of ironing isn't half as tiring as an hour's work with the old type of iron.

All the little things around the house are electric, too, ever since we had the excellent results from the bigger electric products. The toaster is one that holds two slices and toasts automatically with the bread coming up out of the machine when it is done enough.

Even the coffee is made in an electric percolator. There was an argument over what type of coffee-maker was going to do the trick for the family for a while but mother's personal opinion won out and the urn got the decision. The rest of the family were more inclined towards the all-glass percolator that makes ten cups at a time.

There wasn't a bit of argument about the tea set, however, and it makes tea as good, if not better, than it is made in either England or China.

You have to hand it to mother these days. She knows all the time-saving articles and the ones that save her the most money and trouble.

KEEP BEDS WELL MADE—

The well-made bed adds so much to the smart look of the bed, to say nothing of the comfort of the occupants at night. So for the smooth look and comfort definite rules should be followed.

Wrinkles must be kept out of every corner, so begin by placing the pad smoothly over the mattress. The bottom sheet should be placed with the centre crease exactly in the middle of the bed and must be tucked in well at the top and sides, with corners folded flat and smooth. The top sheet should be laid wrong side up with the large hem at the top, and should be tucked in well at the bottom.

Lay each blanket or cover evenly on the bed so that both sides can be pulled tightly and neatly. The hem of the top sheet is then turned back over the blanket for a neat finish to the covers. Fluff up the feathers of the pillows and shape them to the desired forms. Lastly, cover the bed with a spread, and take pains to see that the design is in the centre.

New Wool Swim Suits Exciting and Flattering

There Is Choice of One and Two - Piece and Dressmaker Types With Nautical Stripes, Stars and Anchors for Trim

Left, knee-length white wool coat worn over embroidered wool jersey swim suit; right, honeycomb knit cape topping dressmaker suit in green, gray and white striped knit zephyr.

By LISBETH

FOR THE well-dressed woman who loves her sea and sand, the wool bathing suit is usually first choice. Wool swim suits flatter the figure, and the new fabrics are interesting and decorative, with soft, subtle colorings.

This season's suits are exciting and very good looking, as you can see by casting your eye over those used to illustrate this article. They are offered in a variety of styles, from the one-piece classic for the active swimmer, to the dressmaker versions. They are accented by nautical stripes, appliqued stars, anchors, daisies, jacquard embroideries and other attractive whimsies.

Wool swim suits are highly absorbent, and therefore allow moisture to evaporate slowly. Nautical styling is used in the two-piece swim suit shown left. It is a white knit wool with red and blue stripes at the neckline and down the sides of the shorts, and twisted red and blue cord tie belt, knotted casually at the front.

Skirts Flare

Dressmaker suits, for general beachwear as well as swimming, also come in one and two-piece styles. The skirts show a tendency to flare this season, sometimes having tiny pleats to provide freedom and movement.

Important styles have flattering draped bodices or fitted up-lift and molded hiplines. Simple, well-cut styles developed in novelty stitches in raised, matelasse or paneled effects are new looking and smart, often simulating hand knits.

The damsel lounging in the sun, left, is wearing an embroidered wool jersey swim suit with gathered fullness. Over it she wears a knee-length coat in white knit wool, with tuxedo revers belted with a cord tie and large composition anchor in navy to match the suit.

At right, a knee-length cape in honeycomb knit tops a dressmaker suit in green, gray and white striped knit zephyr.

Matching outfits are favorites with those who are ensemble conscious. Trim little knitted wool maillots with companion boleros and calots are favored, as well as those with contrast.

Style Whimsies

Black faille is important this season, especially the black faille topcoat cut along reefer lines.

Wider brims and higher crowns are featured in the newest summer hats.

The black silk grosgrain coat is high style for summer. This coat is also available in navy.

The soft, fine kidskin shoes that feel light on your feet are back in style again. Kidskin is going to be the shoe fashion for fall.

Hints on Fashions

Many well-known women have taken up the current fad of trimming their summer hats with fresh instead of artificial flowers.

Of course, this is rather expensive unless you have a flower garden, but it may be an incentive to raising flowers at home.

At any rate, these fresh poses are delightfully sweet and fresh, as you can see by looking at this smart sailor trimmed with a cluster of freesia, bachelor buttons, moss rosebuds and a white rose. A similar corsage at the shoulder, waist or lapel makes an even more charming ensemble.

Hot Potato Chips Green Salad
Fillet of Catfish
Buttered Broccoli

Lemon Pie Coffee
You can try this manner of cooking catfish on any other fish. I know it is good. This particular recipe and those of ham steak Dixie came from Frank Hurlman French Lick Springs hotel chef and they are favorites, he says with the turf notables who gather at that Indiana resort for the Churchill Downs races.

Today's Recipes

FILLET OF CATFISH FRIED IN CORNMEAL—Two pounds catfish fillets, three tablespoons flour, two well beaten eggs, one cup cornmeal, one level teaspoon salt. Salt the fillets on both sides. Next dip them in flour, then in beaten eggs and last in the cornmeal. Heat cooking fat in frying pan and fry the fish to a golden brown. Drain the fat, dot the fillets with small pieces of butter, and as soon as the latter turns brown the fish is ready to serve. Serve with lemon and tartar sauce.

HAM STEAK DIXIE—One ham steak, one-fourth inch thick; one sliced banana, one lump of butter, one teaspoon flour, two-thirds cup of milk. Fry the ham steak slightly on both sides in the butter. Place the sliced banana on top of the steak and bake in the oven for about 10 to 15 minutes. In the meantime add the flour to the drippings which are obtained by frying the steak, and last, add the milk. This will make the gravy. Cover a platter with the gravy and place the ham on it and serve immediately.

Wedding Jewelry

Jewelry is always associated with weddings. Tradition has it that the bride and groom exchange gifts.

A necklace of real pearls is the loveliest gift a groom can give his bride, but if he cannot afford such a magnificent gift, there are plenty of other jewels. One or two clips or a brooch or bracelet are things she will always wear and cherish.

The bride's gift to the groom usually is a handsome cigarette case, but if she wants to be different and can afford it, a thin evening watch and chain, a scarf pin and cuff links for his sack suits or jeweled studs will please him.

Hollywood—Lights! Camera! Action! All three of the Lane sisters fall in love with one man in "Sister Act."

The picture is under way on a Warner Brothers sound-stage this week, although Director Michael Curtiz still hasn't an actor for the girls to fall in love with... anyway, not when we visit the set.

Mike, who is best known for spectacular action pictures like "The Charge of the Light Brigade" and "The Adventures of Robin Hood," today has the look of a man suffering from claustrophobia. He is working on a tiny set representing an attic room. The Lane sisters and Gale Page, newly drafted from the radio, are house cleaning.

Although the picture is only four days old, Mike already has sick names for the feminine members of his cast. Rosemary Lane is "quick-silver," Lola is "sophisticated girl," Patricia is "baby" and Miss Page is "the girl from Chicago."

It is one of those scenes involving a lot of light talk and fast cues. The girls are having trouble.

Suddenly, Curtiz explodes: "Listen, be gay, bubble, act youthful—that is if any of you are young!"

A couple of takes later, they get it right and Mike grudgingly calls lunch. But he fires a parting shot. "Listen, girls," he pleads, "a little steak, not a big steak. I want actors back here after lunch, not sleep walkers."

At Twentieth Century - Fox, Charles Farrell is making his first Hollywood picture in three years. He and Shirley Temple are doing a scene for "Lucky Penny." They have just had to give up a penthouse apartment and are moved into a room below the street level. It is a tender scene in which Shirley, his daughter, comforts him.

Any grownup actor has to be on his toes with Shirley, so Director Irving Cummings tells Farrell. "Now, Charlie, don't act like a juvenile—give."

The little flick is all that is needed. The scene is okay.

After it is over, Farrell tells us an interesting thing. Four years ago, he and Janet Gaynor worked in another picture with Shirley, "Change of Heart." But you never saw Shirley in this film.

Before it was released, she had made "Little Miss Marker" with Dorothy Dell, and was hailed as a star. Fox cut her out of "Change of Heart," not because she wasn't good, but because the part wasn't big enough.

On the "Algiers" set, we find Sigrid Gurie visiting in Hedy Lamarr's dressing room. This is unusual. Most feminine stars stick to their own dressing rooms. But these girls are new to Hollywood and haven't picked up all its ways.

To-day, they are talking about husbands. The husbands are getting the worst of it. Miss Gurie is in the midst of a contested divorce suit with her. Miss Lamarr is bemoaning the fact that the money she got as a settlement is tied up in a Vienna bank.

"Before I marry again, I'll have to know the man awfully well," says Miss Lamarr. Miss Gurie nods agreement.

So it looks like bad news for the Hollywood swains.

Marjorie Weaver's severest critic is a chimpanzee working with her in "I'll Give a Million." The monk doesn't like women. He's kicked Marjorie in the face in one scene and he's scratched her several times.

We watch Director Walter Lang try to get a shot of a scene set representing a French street. A policeman has arrested Warner Baxter for turning in a false fire alarm. Marjorie is trying to explain that the chimpanzee did it. She is holding the monk by a taker.

The rehearsal goes off smoothly, but, as they go to shoot the scene, the chimp suddenly pulls the rope out of Marjorie's hand and makes a dash through a crowd of extras.

With his trainer in hot pursuit, he goes right for the top of the stage. It is like a chase scene in a picture. For 10 minutes, all the actors crane their necks and watch the drama of the catwalks. Finally, the monk is cornered. Giving out doleful cries, he is brought back down to resume his career as a Hollywood actor.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

FIVE-SUIT BRIDGE

IF YOU ARE about to tackle the new game for the first time, be forewarned that you will find it cumbersome to deal the larger deck, go through the longer bidding which frequently develops, hold 16 cards if your fingers are short, and spend the extra time for 16 tricks instead of 13. But also be prepared for some delightful problems in deciding where to place the face-up last card dealt, known as the widow. After the opening lead, you may put it in either your hand or dummy, discarding whatever card you wish.

E Q 5 2		E 9 7 6
K 10 4 3		A 8 7 3
A J 6		2
K Q 8 5		A 3 9 4
6 2		Q 7 6
E J 10 8 3		E A K 4
8 7 6		A Q J 5 2
10 9		Q 5
10 3 2		7 6
A K J 9		10 8 5 3

(Dealer South. Neither side vulnerable. Widow card: Heart 4.)

After South reached 5-Spades on this deal by normal bidding, West led the club K. The widow card in this case is valueless of itself, but its displacement value is great. By putting it in the dummy and discarding the club 2, South makes his contract certain, as even with a bad break he can lose only one trick in clubs, one in diamonds and one in hearts.

In Five-Suit, there are 16 tricks to a deal. Book is eight tricks, and odd-tricks scored below the line are all tricks beyond the first eight you take. Thus one-odd means nine tricks, three-odd means 11, and so on.

Game is 120 points below the line. From a scoreless position, this requires six-odd in clubs or diamonds, which count 20 a trick; five-odd in hearts or spades, which count 25; four-odd in the new suit, "Eagles", which count 30, or three-odd in no trumps, counting 40 a trick. Six bid and made is called a Small Slam with a bonus of 500 not vulnerable, 750 vulnerable. Seven bid and made is called a Grand Slam, paying 1,000 not vulnerable, 1,500 vulnerable. Eight bid and made or all the tricks, is called a Super Slam, paying 1,500 not vulnerable and 2,000 vulnerable. Holding five aces in one hand counts 300 honors. Otherwise all the scoring is as in regular contract bridge, also the usual rules.

For garden parties and evening wear, quaint prints of the gay nineties in organdy are picturesque and feminine.

Dusty blue and blue gray in plain and chalky stripes are smart for the summer.

Smithville Takes First From Beach

First Game of Fruit Belt League Resulted in 10 to 9 Score In Favor of Smithville.

Both teams started off the initial game of the season with four runs each, but settled down considerably after that, and it was close all the way, first one team then another scoring the odd run.

A good crowd witnessed the encounter.

The ease with which new insects may enter Canada from foreign countries was displayed recently in St. Catharines. A lady bought a small ornament at a local store, and placed it on her radio. While dusting around it, she noticed a small pile of sawdust. Investigating, she found that out of the bamboo nick-nack was poking a beetle. Fortunately, the insect had not bored a large enough hole to escape, and was imprisoned; it finally died before it could extricate itself. Just beside the hole which it had made was the well-known stamp, "Japan".

FRUIT BELT SOFTBALL LEAGUE OPENS HERE ON FRIDAY NIGHT

Peach Kings Win At Stoney Creek

Take First Game of Season Away From Home By Score of 8 to 4.

The locals started off with a victory in their first start in the Fruit Belt League last night, and it was a well deserved win. Mid-season form was shown by both teams, with Fox holding the hard hitting Creek players to two hits. He struck out nine in seven innings, but offset this good work by issuing eight free passes to first.

However, when the Kings got settled down, they should field one of the best all-round teams they have had in several seasons.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON PREVIEWED

The Golden Text

Mark 12:31—"Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

Serving Through Christian Citizenship

PREVIEW OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for May 22 is Mark 12:13-17; 28-34, the Golden Text being Mark 12:31, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.")

"POLITICS MAKES strange bed fellows," but never stranger than on that Tuesday of our Lord's last week, when Pharisees, Herodians and Sadducees made common cause against Jesus "that they might catch him in talk."

The Political Question

They concluded that the most likely question on which to catch him and discredit him either with the people or with the powers of Rome, was the question, "Is it lawful to give tribute to Caesar or not?" No question was so loaded with dynamite as this one. And they thought they had cleverly shut him up to a "yes" or "no" answer, where "yes" would at once alienate the people; and "no" would as surely throw him liable to the charge of sedition against Caesar, and Rome would take care of him to their satisfaction. But Jesus surprised them, not by evading the question, but by asking them a question more fundamental than their own, and by asking it he tactfully removed them from the offensive and put them on the defensive, and forced them to judge themselves. Not having any money of his own, he asked them for a piece of the money in question, and they promptly produced it from their own purses, thus condemning them for accepting and using in their business the benefits of Rome's government, while unwilling to support the government they used. Therefore, Jesus said to them, "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and unto God the things that are God's." We talk much of our civic rights, but are not so keen about having our civic duties pointed out. We expect the government to do everything for us and rebel at doing anything for our government. Caesar cannot always be rendering unto us; we must at times "render unto Caesar."

Church and State

Nor need "the things that are Caesar's" be arrayed against "the things that are God's." Civic duties and religious duties need not clash with one another. The state is God's institution to minister in things civic and political and the church is God's institution to minister in things spiritual. In these days when, under different forms of government than ours, dictators are restricting and persecuting the church, we should thank God as never before for our system of absolute separation of church and state, which enables each citizen of whatever faith to follow the dictates of his own conscience in rendering unto Caesar, in the state, the things that are Caesar's and unto God, in the church of one's own free choosing, the things that are God's.

The Legal Question

After answering the political question regarding tribute and a doctrinal question of the Sadducees regarding the resurrection, there came to Jesus a scribe with a legal question: "What commandment is the first of all?" There were hundreds of chances of going wrong here, so the scribe must have thought. But Jesus enunciated the basic command that includes all others, the law of love—supreme love of God and man: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart (emotionally), and with all thy soul (spiritually), and with all thy mind (intellectually), and with all thy strength (actively), and thy neighbor as thyself (socially). There is none other commandment greater than these."

The Leading Question

Having answered all of these questions he put to them the leading question, "What think ye of Christ? Whose Son is he?" And he accepted no answer that denied him the unique Lordship of deity.

One Minute Pulpit

Do we then make void the law through faith? God forbid: yea, we establish the law.—Romans 3:31.

An Approaching Bicentenary

By Professor J. HUGH MICHAEL, Emmanuel College, Toronto.

On the twenty-fourth day of May next year the two-hundredth anniversary of a major occurrence in religious history will be celebrated. On May 24, 1738, took place the evangelical conversion of John Wesley. The Methodist Church in Great Britain is making elaborate preparations for the celebration of the event; but not in Great Britain alone and not merely within the confines of Methodism, will the day be observed. It will doubtless be duly observed in Canada, both within and without the bounds of the United Church.

Christian history has witnessed a series of epoch-making conversions, such as those of Saul of Tarsus, Augustine, and Luther. Wesley's conversion is the last that we can place in this august succession—the last to mark an epoch in the history of religion.

Volumes have been written on the social and political consequences of Wesley's work. To-day the world with all its scientific and mechanical achievements has come to a sorry pass. There is a growing sense of our need of the things for which Wesley stood. It may be that the observance of the bicentenary will bring about the spiritual revival for which the world is waiting. I venture to quote a few words from the preface of a recent brilliant book on John Wesley—"Son to Susanna" by G. Elsie Harrison, Mrs. Harrison is a daughter of the late Dr. John S. Simon, the great authority on all things relating to Wesley and Methodism. She writes: "A Recall to Religion has been sounded through England... I have felt that a presentation of an epoch in English history where this very thing—a revival of religion—did take place might prove of interest. Could we understand something of the soil and the blood and the bones which went to the making of the evangelical revival of the eighteenth century, we might be in a better position to appreciate the possibility of a revival of religion to-day." Mere organization, however elaborate, will not accomplish much. Could we emulate the sincerity and earnestness with which Wesley sought the blessing, we, too, of this generation might find it. Are we willing to pay the price?

Poems That Live

MOTHER

I think I can hear her sweet voice,
I think I can hear her call,
I think I can feel her gentle touch
As in the days of yore.
Her presence was always cheerful,
Her smile was a charm to me;
But the very sight of her beautiful face
In our home no more will we see.

My childhood days I remember
The life that was full of glee;
I was full of joy and gladness
As I sat on Mother's knee.
She taught me to be kind and gentle
And watched o'er me day by day;
I had not a care or worry
While I was a child at play.

Now I am grown into manhood
And Mother's laid away
Yet those memories, of the days of yore,
When everything was gay,
The old arm chair stands vacant
The home seems drear to me,
But the memories of my Mother dear.

In my life will ever be.

What is home with a Mother
To soothe our every care?
She was always kind and gentle
And to every one so fair.
She was never tired of doing good
In sickness always there.
A home without a Mother
Has very little care.

NOTES ON Canadian Birds

By G. H. RICHARDSON

The growing leaves make observation of small birds difficult. In the case of warblers, one has a better chance of seeing them because their constant activity gives one many occasions to follow their movements, and out of these many movements usually once or twice their pauses will be in an open spot. But with vireos, the observer is almost at a loss. These little birds are hardly larger than warblers and have entirely different actions. Movements seem to be few and far between, while the birds stop at one spot (usually behind leaves) and sit looking around, sometimes it seems for minutes on end. You hear them, for they sing very frequently, but their elusiveness is exasperating.

The name vireo comes from the Latin root word meaning to be Bobolinks are related to the orioles and blackbirds. At this time their winter plumage has changed by wear and fading into a striking pattern. Their song simply bubbles out and combines a resonant somewhat banjo-twanging quality with a phrasing so ecstatic that it is impossible to imitate. The phrasing gobbles-ing, gobbles-ing, gobbles-ing—spinch, spinch, spinch, suggests the form of the song. The first part is very ringing and deliberate, and the "spinch" is tumbled out as if the bird can no longer contain itself.

If one chances along sand beaches or mud-flats, there are shorebirds in evidence. The most notable types of shore-birds are sandpipers and plovers. Sandpipers usually scuttle along with a fairly even walk, picking here and there as they go. Plovers put their heads

Red-Eyed Vireo

green—and at one time their common name was greenlets instead of vireo. Nearly all are greenish on the back, but a soft green which readily melts with their surroundings. The commonest vireo, red-eyed, has a song suggestive of a robin's by the twirls in it, but is broken up into short distinct phrases. The bird itself has a blue-gray crown, bordered with black, a black line through the eye, which is bright red, and dull white underneath.

Warblers have very fine rather short bills. Vireos, in addition to their deliberateness of action, have slightly heavier bills.

When one is looking up the identity of a new bird, the process is considerably simplified when the stranger can be recognized as to family—oriole, thrush, finch, warbler, wren, vireo, etc.

Bobolinks Related to Blackbirds

In certain fields, one can hardly hear anything else for bobolinks.

SEEKS LEGISLATURE

Harry Oakes, Canadian gold mining tycoon, now residing in the Bahamas Islands, may become a candidate for a seat in the island's legislature following the elevation of Alfred Adderley, Negro lawyer, from the legislature to the legislative council. Mr. Oakes has millions invested in the district which Adderley had represented.

You're Telling Me

By WILLIAM RITT

Dramatic critics have selected "Of Mice and Men" as the year's best play. It may be of interest to the burly-chested, he-man type to notice that the mice are mentioned first.

Hitler, we read, in a recent interview with Max Schmeling, asked the former champion how he knocked out his last opponent. Max, to be polite, no doubt, asked Adolf how he knocked out Austria.

With the New York Yankees reeling with unexpected defeats, Col. Jake Ruppert, their owner, must expect any day, now, a note of mutual sympathy from the Japanese government.

The mother-in-law joke is fading rapidly in popularity. And, now, let us hope it will soon be followed by the radio comedians' uncle gag.

European nations are busy as bees signing a bunch of new treaties—even before the scraps of the last batch have been swept from the foreign office floors.

A lunatics' ball was recently held in Paris, France. It was reported every bit as funny and not nearly as expensive as a conference of European diplomats.

The movies continue to hire athletic young men to play the role of Tarzan, the chest-pounding, savage hero of fiction who emits weird cries. Sooner or later they must turn to the ideal of the pattern.

STAMP CORNER

BY JAMES MONTAGNES

Both Canada and the United States are issuing new stamps during the early summer. Shown at top LEFT, is the new Canadian 6 cent air mail value with a mail aeroplane over the Mackenzie River. In CENTRE, is the Memorial Chamber of Canada's war dead in the Peace Tower of the parliament buildings at Ottawa. At top RIGHT, is the 50 cent value with a view of Vancouver harbor. The three stamps will go on sale June 15. Below LEFT, is the Martha Washington stamp issued May 5, and at RIGHT, the Benjamin Franklin stamp to be issued May 19. Tripoli's new air mail stamp is shown bottom CENTRE.

Among the little-known stamp issuing countries are Afghanistan, Nepal and Tibet, all bordering on India. Because the stamps from these countries are in native script, and the early issues especially contained no writing in European languages, they have been difficult for most collectors to recognize, and so practically left alone. Add to this the fact that few of these stamps appear in this part of the world, and the reason for their scarcity among Canadian collectors is solved.

Nepal Stamps Issued in 1931

The stamps of Nepal, an independent kingdom in the Himalayan mountains, with a population of 5,600,000, have been issued since 1881, and including the last issue in 1931, consist of only four distinct designs. None carry the name of the country in English.

Tibet, which is north of Nepal, is considered a part of China, but has made separate treaties with Great Britain because most of her trade is with India. The country has an estimated population of 2,000,000. It has issued two stamp designs since 1913 when its first issue appeared, the second being put on sale in 1933. Tibet stamps carry the name of the country in English.

Afghanistan, with an estimated population of 12,000,000, has in recent years issued many pictorial stamps with the name of the country in French. The early issues, being all in native script, are however, hard to obtain and identify. They are quite valuable. It is interesting to note that the early Afghan stamps in used condition are all either torn or have a piece cut out of them, as that was the method of cancellation. Since 1927 the modern stamps have been issued, with values and identification in French.

New Issues

Holland will issue this autumn a three value set to mark 40 years of Queen Wilhelmina's reign... Holland's colony in South America, Suriname, will issue in June a four value set to mark the 75th anniversary of the emancipation of slavery in the colony... French Indo-China will issue its commemorative stamps to French President Doumer this month... Poland will issue 100,000 miniature sheets, half of them imperforate, for the Warsaw philatelic exhibition... France is to issue a new series with the famous "Sower" design... Bulgaria will issue a new set to mark the birthday of the crown prince Simeon on June 16... Algeria is to issue a commemorative set for the 100th anniversary of the death of French explorer Rene Caille... Albania withdrew her regular postage stamps, from circulation with the issuance of a commemorative to King Zog's wedding, which stamps remain in use till June 27, when remainders will be destroyed, and regular postage placed in use again... Australia is understood to be preparing a pictorial set, with one scene from each of the six states, to form part of the new George VI regular issue.

New Club Members

New members Junior Stamp Exchange club are: Bill Galloway, 98 Gothic Ave., Toronto; Fred Slevert, 383 Glenlake Ave., Toronto; R. Gerstner, Dodsland, Sask.; Geraldine Wright, St. Walburg, Sask.; Jeanette Jeannotte, St. Walburg, Sask.; D. S. Blackmore, 105 Richmond St., Chatham, Ont.

Remember to exchange honestly and without delay. Write other members first if they wish to exchange with you. The Stamp Corner is not responsible for stamps sent members for exchange.

Why A Small Town Remains Small

One of the things which keeps a small town small, and which makes doing business or practicing a profession so hazardous, is the number of people in that town who earn their income there and spend it in the nearby large city, says the Kiwanis Magazine.

The small town dentist is irritated by the local citizen who goes to the large city to patronize the cheap advertising dentist, when he himself goes to the big town tailor to have his clothes made. The small town lawyer complains when the big city lawyer is called in on an important case, but when he is getting married, he goes to the big city to buy his fiancée's engagement ring. The local druggist is annoyed when the woman who runs the beauty parlor goes to the big city for her soaps and creams, yet he allows his wife to go to that same city for bargain permanent waves.

Let him among us who is without sin cast the first stone. When a man makes his living out of the citizens of a town, it is his duty to spend every dollar of that income in the town, if possible. If he expects the people of that town to do business with him, then he should realize his own obligations to deal with them.

Of course, women are the worst offenders. The larger stocks, the good advertising, the bargain days and all the other attractions of the big stores in the city have an almost irresistible appeal to them. If a husband would only point out to his wife that the money she is spending was put into his hands by the local people, and that if they, too, began to deal in the big city, she would starve, she might be cured of this bad habit.

Serving Through Christian Citizenship ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Mark 12:13-17; 28-34

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell
And Alfred J. Burscher

Tuesday of Holy Week was the great day of opposition as Jesus taught in the temple. Among the questions asked him was, "Is it lawful to give tribute to Caesar or not?"

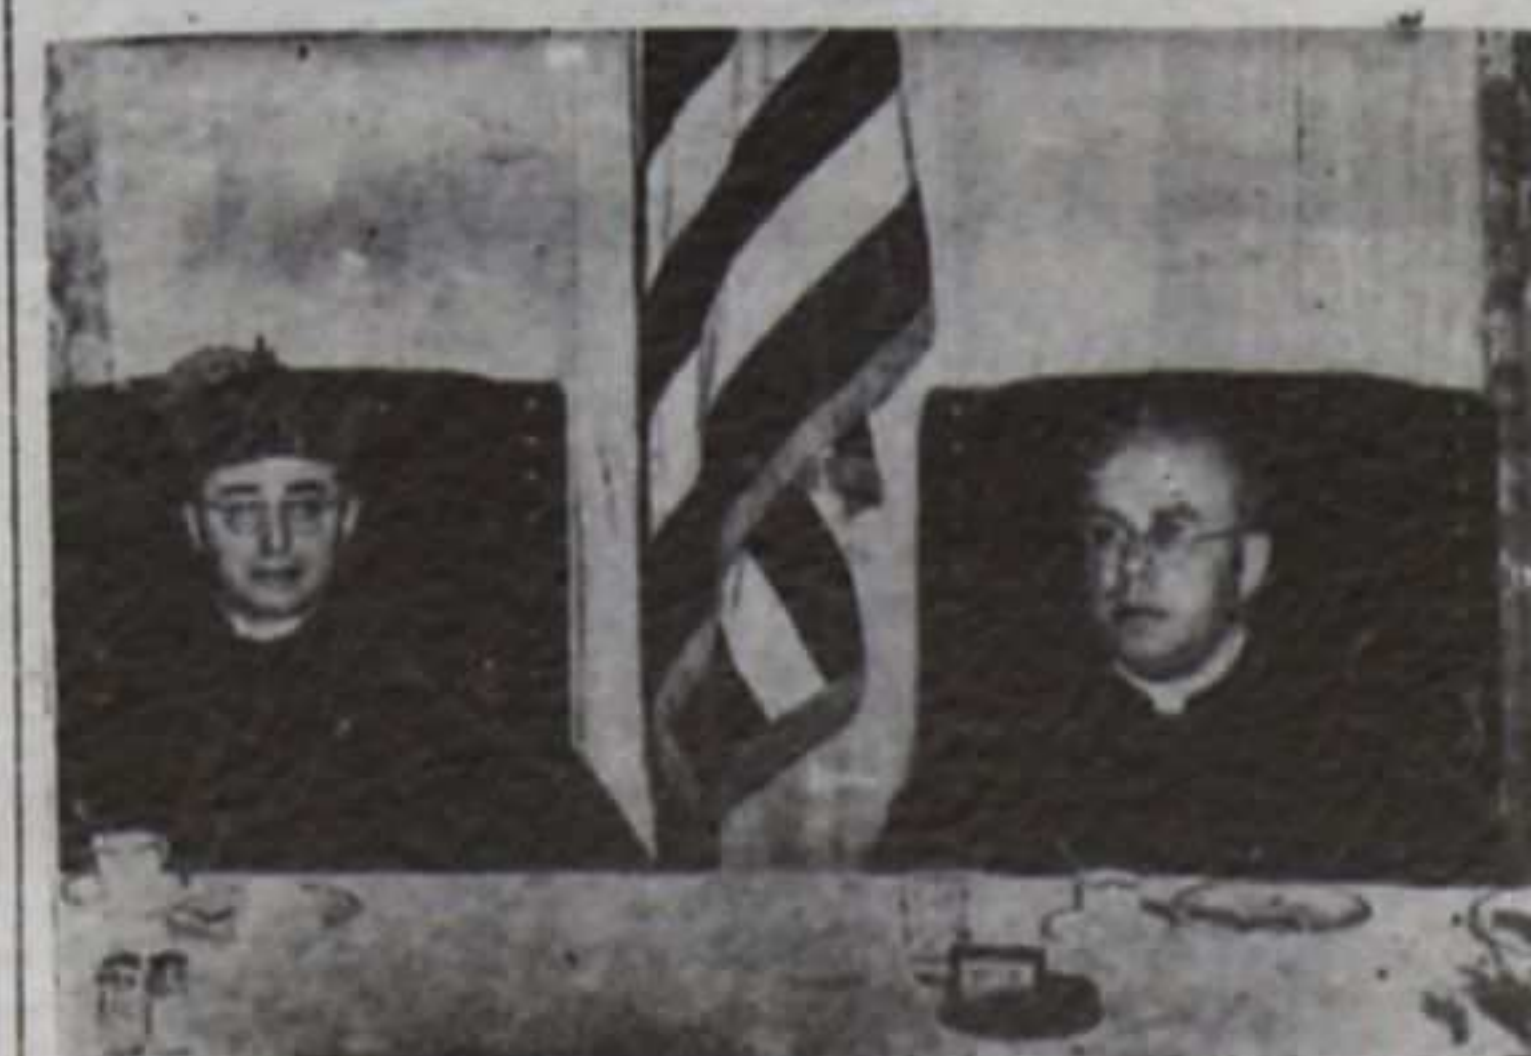

Jesus asked for a coin and inquired whose image was on it. They replied, "Caesar's." "Render then unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and unto God things that are God's," said Jesus.

Then a scribe asked him to name the great commandment of the law. He answered, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, soul, mind and strength and they neighbor as thyself."

After their questions were answered Jesus said, "I will ask you one question. What think ye of Christ? Whose Son is he?" This is the leading question of all for each of us to answer aright.

The annual business meeting for the Grassie W.I. was held last Thursday afternoon at Mrs. Chas. Book's home, with a good attendance.

The secretary gave a splendid report of the year's work, with a balance of $49.00 on hand. Mrs. Herbert Glover, of Fruitland, who was a guest, presided for the election of officers, which resulted as follows:

President, Mrs. H. Adams; 1st Vice-Pres., Mrs. L. Jacobs; 2nd Vice-Pres., Mrs. M. D. Bradt; Sec'y-Treas., Mrs. Stirling; District Director, Mrs. H. Beamer.

The various committees and branch directors were also appointed, and an enthusiastic year is looked forward to, with all the members taking part.

A short program of music followed by the two little Beckett sisters, solo by Mrs. Glover, reading from Irene Ball, and an enjoyable contest by Mrs. D. Nelson.

A dainty lunch was then served by the hostess assisted by the lunch conveners. The next month's meeting is to be held at Mrs. D. Nelson's home on Thursday afternoon, June 16th, one week later than usual on account of the County District Annual meeting at St. Ann's on June 8th.

GRIMSBY CENTRE

Mr. and Mrs. Woods of Hamilton and Mrs. Elliott of Mount Forest were visitors at Mrs. H. T. Haws' last Thursday.

Several farmers near here are putting up electric fences around their pastures so intending sportsmen had better be careful when crossing fields and beware of an innocent steel wire stretched three feet from the ground, it is capable of some kick.

The farmers have just completed one of the earliest spring sowings in the last 25 years and have never known clover and hay fields to come through the winter with so little damage.

Mr. H. T. Haws is under the Doctor's care, suffering a cracked rib, cold, bronchitis and plebitis in right leg.

Fire Destroys
Lincoln Inn

Had Just Been Newly Decorated in Preparation For Opening.

Fire, believed to have been caused from an overheated furnace, completely destroyed the fine old 12-roomed brick building, on No. 8 highway, one mile west of Grimsby, on Monday morning, completely demolishing all the contents. Used as an accommodation for tourists, and known as the Lincoln Inn, it had not yet been opened for the season, and the owner, Mr. F. J. Dunham, was sleeping in the refreshment booth at the front of the house, because of previous break-ins by thieves. Just recently the home had been newly decorated in preparation for the summer trade.

The fire was first noticed by a passing truck driver about 5 o'clock, who smashed a window to awaken any occupants of the house who might be there, and then he summoned neighbours. He then drove into Grimsby to sound the alarm. The local brigade was quickly at the scene but found the building a mass of flames from top to bottom on their arrival. Only partly covered by insurance, the loss is estimated at several thousand dollars.

Urgent Plea For Highway Safety

"Safe And Sane 24th" Applies To Steering Wheels as Well As Pinwheels.

An urgent appeal for a "safe and sane" holiday week-end was issued by Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Ontario minister of highways, when he announced that his department would once more conduct a summer-time advertising and publicity campaign with the object of cutting down the appalling number of deaths and injuries which put all Ontario in mourning last May 24th week-end.

"It's not many years ago," said Mr. McQuesten, "that the only important worry we had over 'the 24th' was whether our children would come through with nothing more serious than a scorched finger. Strong public opinion and the determination to make the Queen's Birthday 'safe and sane' has practically eliminated the horrors we used to witness each year from dangerous fireworks displays. If we can make children act with safety and caution when they have a firecracker in their hands, it seems logical to assume we can do the same with grown-ups when they have a steering-wheel in their hands."
